The XXII Summer Olympic Games take part in the USSR from July 19 to August 3 of 1980. The Federation of Radiosport of the Soviet Union and Central Radio Club of the USSR named after E. Krenkel issued special prefixes to be used by amateurs in Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Minsk and Tallinn from January 1 to August 3 of 1980 to commemorate the Olympic Games.

Leningrad Society of Short Wave Radio—amateurs founded in 1927 enrolles more then 600 members now. 25 of them, most experienced operators, are granted the honour of representing special prefixes during this period of the Olympic Year. These prefixes are: RX1 and RZ1 instead of UA1, RW1 for UW1 and RK1 for UK1, used by the club stations.

Leningrad has been chosen as a city for quarter—final Olympic football competitions. A special Olympic Amateur Station will operate in Leningrad with RL1O callsign. The honour of representing the callsign on the air from July 15 to August 3 1980 is granted to one of the best Leningrad club stations — UK1AAA.
